ESTIMATING MORTALITY RATES NCBI Bookshelf

Many of the techniques described above also can be used to estimate various demographic rates. In a crisis, one of the most important is the mortality rate. Epidemiologists conventionally use the crude mortality rate (CMR) the number of deaths per 10,000 persons per day as a rough indicator of a population's overall health condition in an

Estimation of the mortality rate functions from time

The estimation of the mortality rate function for a stage-structured population is obtained starting from time- series field data on the abundance of the species. The method is based on the formulation of the mortality as a

Estimation of Mortality Rates in Stage Structured

The problem addressed is one of the classics of statistical ecology, the estimation of mortality rates from stage-frequency data, but in tackling it we found ourselves making use of ideas and techniques very different from those we expected to use, and in which we had no previous experience.

Abstract: The estimation of the mortality rate function for a stage-structured population is obtained starting from time-series field data on the abundance of the species. The method is based on the formulation of the mortality as a combination of cubic splines and it is applied to the case of Lobesia botrana, the main pest in the European

The stated aims of the Lecture Notes in Biomathematics allow for work that is "unfinished or tentative". This volume is offered in that spirit. The problem addressed is one of the classics of statistical ecology, the estimation of mortality rates from stage-frequency data, but in tackling it we

The Measurement of Mortality IUSSP

This chapter introduces the measurement of mortality by considering in detail the various kinds of mortality rate used by demographers. In Section 2.2 the crude death rate is described, and in Section 2.3 the calculation of age-specific death rates is illustrated. whereas in m-type rates the exposed-to-risk is an estimate

Indirect estimation of child mortality Tools for

Description of the method. Indirect methods, pioneered by Brass and Coale (1968), estimate child mortality from information on aggregate numbers of children ever born and children still alive (or dead) reported by women classified by age group (or alternatively grouped by time since first birth, or marital duration).

Estimation of mortality for stage structured zooplankton

Mortality rates thus likely vary with developmental stage or size of the organism and, as an important corollary, the developmental stage composition of a natural population is expected to contain an imprint of the points in the life history where higher or lower rates of mortality have acted.

Estimation of mortality for stage structured zooplankton

Abstract Estimation of zooplankton mortality rates in field populations is a challenging task that some contend is inherently intractable. This paper examines several of the objections that are commonly raised to efforts to estimate mortality.
