The j Sound j Phoneme English Language Club

The j sound is made through the mouth and is Voiced, which means you vibrate your vocal chords to make the sound. It is defined by the position of your tongue and it is an approximant, which is a sound made by creating a narrow space in your mouth through which air flows. In this case, it's the space between your tongue and the top of your mouth. The sides are blocked so the flow of air just

English Pronunciation Lesson 29 CH and J Sounds

The J sound is a voiced sound because you use your voice to make the sound. The CH sound is a voiceless or unvoiced sound because the vocal cords do not vibrate when you make the sound. Instead, you release air out of your mouth to make the sound.
