Descriptive Statistics Whether you realize it or not, the world of descriptive statistics is a world you already know, at least to some extent. Descriptive statistics are used to summarize or describe data from samples and populations. A good example is one involving your scores in a class. Let s say you took a total of 10 different tests throughout a semester. To get an idea of your overall

Overall, I am pretty pleased with Statistics Unplugged, and I think it has been an effective learning tool. By the way, I own both Kindle and print editions, and the Kindle edition is a very precise reproduction of the print edition and works very well both on my PC and on my Acer Iconia 10" tablet.

Procedure We assigned two sections of a statistics course taught by mathematics faculty to the statistics control group and three sections to the statistics reasoning group. We balanced, as much as possible, the class times and sizes of the two groups. All instructors used the same statistics textbook (Moore, 2000). In addition, we provided students in the statistics reasoning group with a <http://chrismillerworks.co/Research-Methods-Society-for-the-Teaching-of-Psychology--.pdf>
